The Elden Ring starts a Once-in-a-Lifetime Adventure!

The Orders you Take Shape the World!

To Begin, please create a character and travel to the World of Dawn.

See the new world laid out before you. Then choose your Order and begin the adventure.

The three Orders of the Elden Ring:

- Paladins.

This Order is forged for the defense of the Elden Ring. Their attacks focus primarily on suppression, and this Order is valued for its high durability. They can use the Master of Magic and Mantle of the Cycles, but can only use Dawn and Dusk magic.

- Priests.

The Order of the Vili provides the arsenal to destroy its enemies, and are renowned for their fast offense and variety of spells. Their attacks are fueled by Vili and are charged, and they can use Vili and (depending on their level) Emergent Vili magic.

- Dawn Mages.

Dawn Mages are devoted to the creation of Light, the force that shapes the World and the Life Energy of the planet. They are experts at destroying monsters, though even during their efforts they are thinking of the Bonds--the connection between humans and Vili--that make their world possible.

I have a 2-dim. array of booleans,  $A = [0,0,0,1,1,1,0,1]$ . The 1 values correspond to the fractal I am trying to construct. What is the most efficient way of filling in the space between these 1 values? I am currently working with a recursive function that systematically checks each row of the array: function fractal(A,s,d) { var a = A.slice(0,s), b = A.slice(s,s*d), c = A.slice(s*d,s*d+d), d = A.slice(s*d+d); for (var k = 1; k
