• 21 new clubs to connect with, including Chile, South Africa, Egypt, and more (additional content and online updates planned for the Summer of 2014) The FIFA 22 core gameplay has been improved in just about every area as an additional bonus for new and returning fans. Roster quantity and quality have been dramatically expanded, and new captain kits and attributes have been added to support new team leadership models and tactics. In addition to the many enhancements made to the gameplay, EA SPORTS FIFA has made plenty of refinements to some of the most popular aspects of FIFA 22, including an all-new way to gain fans, increased customization options, and refined Pro Clubs experience. Starting with the introduction of HyperMotion Technology, FIFA 22 will feature even more animations, more crowds, more player reaction during both gameplay and on-ball action, more flow-responsive gameplay, and more elaborate stadiums and environments. As well as focusing on making all new gameplay improvements, EA SPORTS FIFA also focused on making improvements to existing gameplay. These new refinements have included an all-new Dynamic DNA Matchmaking function that will make it easier for fans to find players with more compatible traits. As well, players will now have more options when drafting a team, including a new live-update functionality that ensures players will be compatible with new kits, logos, and general gameplay changes. New features include: HyperMotion Technology EA SPORTS FIFA's most radical advancement since the introduction of licensed player likenesses is its implementation of modern motion capture technology. This ground-breaking feature recreates the accuracy and realism of player movements on-field by recreating them in a highly-detailed 3D environment. With the usage of motion capture suits, players will be able to recreate the movements of their favorite players in perfect detail, and the technology will allow them to do so on a global scale. In FIFA, players will be able to use the new HyperMotion technology to create their own game-playing persona, by employing specific on-field techniques that are best suited for them. The use of the new technology in FIFA has allowed for greater expression and control of player movement in the various elements of gameplay. This includes dribbling, shooting, and goalkeeping, and the new, life-like accuracy of motion capture makes FIFA the most fluid, action-oriented, and detailed soccer simulation ever created.
