HyperMotion technology allows a player to run at speeds up to six times faster than normal, using the player's movements and body patterns as measured from their play. Players can run with more freedom of movement, feel the impact of tackles and use their explosiveness to shoot on goal, all using their natural movements and body patterns. This also offers gamers the ability to play with different player styles, from real-world speedsters to speedy dribblers. Players also gain more control over their moves in the air. FIFA 22 includes an all-new depth of gameplay features. The MYPLAYER precision dribbling will take AI players to the next level, while the addition of a new Ultimate Team Expert mode will give players the ability to compete against their friends in a no-limits championship in a dynamic online environment. With an emphasis on player variety, a new contextual drag-and-drop player creation system will let any player customize their player appearance and kit to create a personalized look. "The goal is to give players a chance to show their football talent in their own way," said EA SPORTS FIFA creative director Matt Bilbey. "FIFA gives us the chance to take great players and put them on the pitch to play the way they want to play. With the addition of new hardware and algorithms into the game, players can become their own creators, maximizing their on-field expression and showcasing their individual strengths, even if they don't have any of the attributes found in the real-world." Artistic direction is also being taken to the next level. Both the graphical and animation aspects are being enhanced for a sharper, crisper look, so players appear more realistic in the game. Working with the same core gameplay team who took over the technical lead of FIFA in 2017, the first gameplay elements were introduced at E3 2017: - New Throwing Engine: Now when players throw in-game objects, such as crosses, passes and headers, they can now see the trajectory and spin of the ball before taking a throw. This can be seen on the screen when the ball is being thrown and when the ball leaves the player's foot. - Rich Dust: New animations when players receive or lose the ball. - Ball Mastery: How players move the ball with their feet on the turf. - Precision Dribbling: Try and finish your moves with precision and finesse. - Dynamic Player Trajectory

Features Key:

- Live out your dreams as both a manager and a player
- Create the newest club in FIFA
- Design your kits, style your stadium, and choose whether to compete with the elite or rise up from the lower divisions
- Or test your skills as a player
