If you owned one of the affected muzzleloaders please contact CVA to have it replaced or to have a replacement serial numberÂ. A: After a good deal of searching, I think I've got the serial number of the rifle, but I'm still not sure. I have a picture of the serial number and the ordering card that came with the rifle. I think the numbers on the card have rolled over. Here's what I think is on the card: CVP-05-95-002294-1 [CVA] 1995 100th Anniversary Version 067-09-11 I would appreciate confirmation if anyone can find anything more. If someone could find anything more in the serial number, that would be great! Q: Stopping object from collapsing in right, when it should be in left I have a small is fiddle set up that is demonstrating what's going on. I'm not sure how to make this more clear, so I'll just describe it. Lets say, I have a div with a border. Inside of the div, I have another div, which has a bigger border. If I give these divs right and left paddings, they'll collapse to the left. If I give them small paddings, they'll collapse to the right. The problem arises if I give both of them some padding, the smaller div will collapse to the right. Basically, I need to give the inner div an invisible overflow: hidden attribute. I tried giving it top: -99999999px with margin-top: 0 to get around that, but then the inner div would collapse not even to the left. I tried to add a z-index to the inner div so it would sit above the other border, but it didn't work. How can I make the inner div sit above the other div, with having the other div on top of the inner div? I don't want to use position: absolute, because I'm going to use this setup on several different pages, and I'd like the only difference to be their padding. A: Add position:relative to the #box1 Gov. Rick Scott and the Florida Department of Education have been ordered by the Florida Supreme Court to back off of proposed changes to the

A: Yes, it's a record that's not shared. It can be done in a number of ways, but I usually tell people to use OraQuick, which is considered a reliable HIV test, and then there's the limit of time off of work. Q: Why is Latex spacing so different when using a different font? Sorry, I can't really provide a code snipped, but here's a screenshot to make it more clear. I only use the default font (Latin Modern) and I've not changed any settings related to the document or to the spaces. If I use any different font, the spacing is simply off. What am I doing wrong? A: The quotation marks in the line ormalsize\sffamily\twidert\bfseries are not just wrong, they are also an incorrect way to use them. You should use ormalsize and set font (in this case \twidert as a) command to have all the texts filled with its specific font size. As for the b in \sffamily, that should be just \family, because the argument is a family name, not a size specification. This should work: ormalsize\sffamily\twidert\bfseries Mizzou football finally gets to out of Big 12 Share this: Missouri's 14-year experience in the Big 12 was over as the team beat Rutgers 28-6 and Saturday became the last game for many of the program's top seniors. Missouri also beat Oklahoma State on Oct. 5, a game that ended 14 years of waiting. "It was good to be able to end it on your terms," said offensive lineman Jordan Mills, who has waited an entire cycle with his graduating class. "We wanted to do it here in front of our fans. It was a great way to go out." Missouri has been out of the Big 12 for 14 years since the Tigers left the conference in 2003. The program no longer competes in the Big 12's big games — bowls — and the Tigers have been left to find their own path since they left a league with the highest football revenue in the nation.
