I thought it would be a nice idea to display pictures of Kam and Siena for everyone to see. Siena was born on March 27th at 8:44 pm. She weighed 7 pounds, 10.6 oz (under a pound), and was 23.5 inches long. She arrived early and that's the reason why she was not able to get to her first home visit (at 3 days old). We've had an amazing team supporting us. My husband and I are grateful for every bit of the help they've given us. Thank you so much for your support. It was a scary journey, but it was also a blessing. Thank you for everything.

Love, Kam

The influence of living culture in thermophilic composting of food waste. The aim of this work was to evaluate the impact of different thermophilic composting conditions on the composting of food waste and on the structure of the final compost. Two-step thermophilic composting experiments were set up to recycle food waste with or without plant cells which were pre-grown under different composting conditions. Viability of phytobacteria and fungal biomass and composting performance were monitored in addition to evaluate the effectiveness of the approach. After composting, both physicochemical and microbial properties were determined. Maximum composting temperatures, volumetric water content and relative humidity were higher in the experimental cultures compared to those measured in the control experiment. After composting, pH and electrical conductivity were significantly lower in the experimental cultures than in the control. Carbon and nitrogen stable isotope composition were found to be enriched in the experimental cultures compared to the control. Microbial community structures were investigated by amplifying and cloning 16S rRNA gene from both compost and stored inocula. Greenhouse experiment with wheat plants indicated that plant cells supported the development of microorganisms and increased soil fertility. In conclusion, viable plant cells can improve composting performance. Fruitdale Township, Ashtabula County, Ohio Fruitdale Township is one of the twenty-five townships of Asht
