Q: iPhone - How to send data from one class to another I'm going through different tutorials, websites and developer documentation, but I still have some questions regarding this: I have created an UIViewController which loads from a nib file. But what is the standard approach to allow the ViewController to send a message to a class in my app, which is created in the MainWindow.xib? I'm not talking about navigation, I'm talking about sending data to a class in the MainWindow.xib. [NSThread detachNewThreadSelector:@selector(show) toTarget:self withObject:nil]; I did this the tutorial, but it just doesn't show the data in the ViewController. What should I do? Thanks A: If you want to send data to a class that is created in the MainWindow.xib, the approach you are using can be rewritten like this: MainWindow *myMainWindow = [[MainWindow alloc]init]; [self presentViewController:myMainWindow animated:YES]; [myMainWindow release]; EDIT: This method is ok if you want to present in this way only one view controller. But if you want to use it many times you should use instead the following method: SomeViewController *vc = [[SomeViewController alloc]init]; [self presentViewController:vc animated:YES]; [vc release]; A pilot study assessing the effect of a school-based home-visit program on non-adherence in an inner-city population. A randomized controlled pilot study was conducted to assess the efficacy of a school-based home-visit program on non-adherence to prescribed medications in a low-income, inner-city population. Of the 130 children randomly assigned to intervention (n = 65) or control groups (n = 65), 16 children were lost to follow-up. No significant differences were observed between the intervention and control groups in terms of demographic variables, psychosocial characteristics, and duration of illness prior to enrollment in the study. After 6 months of treatment, no significant differences were found between the two groups in terms of non-adherence to their medications. Despite the small size of the study and the low retention rate, it appears that a school-based home-visit program is unlikely to affect adherence in a population of inner-city
