Hi, I am Jess from Crimson Art Lab. I am working on the 3rd Demo of Disappearance, which is being exhibited in Taiwan Culture Era Market. So, the market was full of the presentation of all kinds of indie developers and a lot of new games. Plus good weather made us all eager for our break, so we were a little tired and ready to relax or satiated by taking some free time to look at the games. Some days of the market were crowded and we were eagerly watching. I almost couldn't take eyes from what I first saw. It was a game called Disapp

Rochester, Ga. — The home of vaunted Nazi hunter and television personality Robert Evans sat across a curving drive from the gray ruins of a 1940s-era Air Force base, where families wait for the day a one-time site of war will be a monument to the end of the war on the home front. It's a welcome spot for Evans, who as the grandson of Hollywood producer and director David O. Selznick, is at the forefront of the push to clean up the 400-square-mile base and its toxic legacy.
