Solution: All track parts need to be sorted from C down to A by "Order" column.BREAKING: TfL to break speed camera secrecy as man dies London's mayor has revealed for the first time that a driver of the yellow Hummer vehicle which killed London teenager Stephen Tomlinson was given a speeding fine – despite having his full details passed to the Home Office. Mayor Boris Johnson also revealed that he has written to TfL boss Daniel Rubinfeld and Mr Rubinfeld’s deputy Val Smirnoff demanding that the company now discloses information on the 12 cameras which caught the Hummer driving at up to 80 mph in the moments before and after the 15-year-old was killed. The letter to Mr Rubinfeld and Mr Smirnoff, seen by The Telegraph, cites the Freedom of Information Act and said: “I trust you will understand the strength of my position and act as soon as possible to comply with this request in full.” Two years ago Mr Johnson came under sustained pressure to admit that camera traps on the A201 near where the accident occurred – including one in the fast lane next to the speed limit – were never expected to register a single speeding offence during their first two years of operation. The suggestion was made by the then transport minister Boris Johnson – the mayor’s father – but he was accused of “wild conspiracy theories” by Mr Johnson. The mayor has now admitted for the first time that a Hummer captured by a camera in Buckinghamshire
